- 2. Scammers: Your email inbox is probably full of their work.
- 3. Hacker groups: Usually work anonymously and create tools for hacking. They often hack computers for no criminal reason and are sometimes even hired by companies wanting to test their security.
- 4. Phishers: Gotten an email recently claiming your bank account is about to expire? Don't fall for these jerks.
- 5. Political/religious/commercial groups: Tend to not be interested in financial gain. These guys develop malware for political ends
- 6. Insiders: They may only be 20% of the threat, but they produce 80% of the damage. These attackers are considered to be the highest risk. To make matters worse, as the name suggests, they often reside within an organization.
- 7. Advanced Persistent Threat (APT) Agents: This group is responsible for highly targeted attacks carried out by extremely organized state-sponsored groups.
